Admission of teachers will be held in a centralised manner through three-stage competition (assessment of indicators in the e-application, test exam and interview), and will be finished on September 10.

At the 1st stage of competition, which continued from July 1 to 15, about 10000 candidates submitted an e-application for 2117 vacant positions. The knowledge and achievement indicators of applicants were estimated via the computer programme based on specified criteria. As a result, the application of 8700 applicants was approved, and they were passed on to the second stage of the competition.

Currently, applicants are taken part in the test exam, which is a part of the second stage of the contest. From 26 July, appliers are taken an e-exam based on the special graphic at the Training Centre of the Department for Informatisation of Education System of the Ministry.

The majority of applicants submitted their documents for a primary teacher position. 1722 appliers submitted their application for 110 vacant positions (23 in Baku, others in regions). Moreover, the number of candidates submitted their application for Azerbaijani language and literature, mathematics, English language, chemistry and biology specialties.

1244 applicants took part in the exams for primary teacher speciality from 26 to 30 July. According to the results of the contest, 77 applicants have been accepted for the work. The rest 33 vacant positions will be offered to teachers, who have collected a passage mark, but not been accepted. Currently, the submission of application for 33 vacant primary teacher positions is continued.

The exams on English language speciality were begun on August 1. There are 1241 vacant positions for this speciality (68 of them in Baku) to which 1529 applicants have applied.

1189 applicants wishing to work as an Azerbaijani language and literature teacher were taken the exam from 8 to 11 August. Each candidate has answered to 35 questions via computer within one hour and have learnt its score after the exam. The results will be revealed on August 12. The next exam for candidates wishing to work as a Chemistry teacher will be held on August 12. Next, will be held exams on history, biology, mathematics, computer science, geography, music and singing, fine arts, pre-military training of youth, and physical culture disciplines.
